

ATLANTIC Crossings

Karen Racine, Leo J. Garofalo, and Gabriel Paquette, Series Editors

The Atlantic Crossings series publishes books exploring the history of the Atlantic world from the sixteenth century until the end of the nineteenth century. It addresses a broad range of themes and subjects, including migration and diasporas, environment and epidemiology, transnational intellectual and political exchanges, Indigenous experiences, slavery and the slave trade, emancipation and its legacies, trade and cultural networks, and diplomacy and military affairs. The series editors seek innovative works on the South and North Atlantic, Caribbean, Pacific Rim of the Americas, and links to the Transpacific. We especially welcome proposals related to the Portuguese-, Spanish-, French-, Dutch-, and Indigenous language-speaking worlds.

See full series offerings at uapress.ua.edu (search by series).

Send inquiries to Karen Racine (kracine@uoguelph.ca), Leo J. Garofalo (lgar@conncoll.edu), or Gabriel Paquette (paquette@uoregon.edu).

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA® PRESS

ADVISORY BOARD

Pedro Cardim
Karoline Cook
Lina del Castillo
Gabriel Entin
Ignacio Gallup-Díaz
Wim Klooster
Hal Langfur
Gelien Matthews
Jorell A. Meléndez-Badillo
Nathaniel Millett

Margarita R. Ochoa
Karl Offen
Juan Luis Ossa Santa Cruz
João Paulo Pimenta
Bianca Premo
José Carlos de la Puente
Tatiana Seijas
Cristina Soriano
Zeb Tortorici
Ashli White

PROSPECTUS

Thank you for your interest in the University of Alabama Press! The following items are requested to evaluate your project. Your emailed prospectus package should include

- a cover letter
- a prospectus including an accessibly written description of your work, its argument, significance, scope, and methodology; its intended audience; the length or anticipated length of the manuscript (estimated word count); the number or anticipated number of illustrations; and the anticipated date of completion if your work is still in progress
- a detailed table of contents
- a description of competitive titles (author, title, publisher, year) and how your book differs from them
- a list of six potential peer reviewers with whom you don't have a close relationship and for whom there is no conflict of interest
- two sample chapters (other than the Introduction), a curriculum vitae (if an edited work, please also include brief bios of the contributors)
- If the book project has its origins as a dissertation, please state whether it is available online and at what URL and how your book will differ from it.